

JOHN CONNELLY, PLEASE STAND UP

Charles S. Zane Said You Were Unfit to Be a Citizen.

ARE YOU? ARE YOU
NOT A CONVICT? EH?

Did You Poison Dogs? The Police Court of Salt Lake Said You Did.

"Look out for that man!" He's a dog poisoner. He was so convicted in Salt Lake police court.

"Look out for that man!" He's an ex-convict. The United States court of Utah convicted him.

"Look out for that man!" He was acquitted of a charge of bigamy, for which he was indicted, because the father of the woman who is now a candidate for county clerk on the church Republican ticket in Salt Lake county, declared that perjured testimony acquitted him. This judge was Charles S.
Zane.

"Look out for that man!" One year after he was acquitted of the charge of bigamy he pleaded guilty to unlawful cohabitation with the woman of whom he was acquitted, by perjured testimony, and was sentenced to the penitentiary by Charles S. Zane, then judge of the United States court in Salt Lake City.

This man is John Connelly, who in a signed statement declares that he lives at 817 First avenue. He edits a column or two every day in the Herald-Republican under the caption of "Thousand Dollars a Day Party." These stories are absolutely false and malicious, and are disproved by the records and the facts, and though the truth has been printed repeatedly, he persists in his lies. But he must have something to say. Take the property on Third South of which he prates in his "Thousand-Dollars-a-Day Story" in his personal organ, the Herald-Republic, on Monday. This property is worth today $800 a front foot. In 1903, when his party controlled the city, property west of that which he says he owned on Third South street was offered to the First Methodist church, then looking for a location, at $125 a front foot. In 1907 and 1908 this property offered to the Methodist church, this man, who was under American control of the city, was sold for $345 per front foot and a year later twenty-five feet was sold for $800 per front foot. Real estate men would place the value at least $800 per front foot.

No wonder he kicks. No wonder he denounces the American party. All criminals do. He has to walk the plank when Americans are in control or pay the penalty. Therefore he kicks. Here is the record of John Connelly in the courts of Utah. The only thing that is lacking to bring him more in the limelight is for him to send a signed statement attempting to deny these facts to the Tribune, which this paper will print, or institute an action for libel against the Tribune.

What Court Records Show.
In 1882 John Connelly was indicted for bigamy, Anna Gallafant being the woman in the case. The case was heard in the United States court in Salt Lake, commencing Wednesday morning, October 29, 1884, and was concluded on Friday, October 31, 1884. Here is the address of Judge Charles S. Zane, before whom the case was tried, to the jury:

Judge Zane's Address.
Gentlemen of the Jury: Counsel for the prosecution state to the court that they have produced all the evidence of which they are advised, and which they have been able to find by diligent inquiry, and they are satisfied that it is not sufficient to warrant a conviction, because it shows that the offense of the marriage to Anna Gallafant, who was the last marriage, took place more than three years before the indictment in this case was found.
In that view of counsel for the prosecution, the court concurs. There have been a good many circumstances tending to show that these witnesses, some of them at least, have not stated frankly, candiment that appreciates the excellence choice.

venient and sensible Russian mouthpiece that gives ly and honestly, all they knew; still, that fact does not authorize a conviction. A jury must convict, if at all, upon evidence.

From the statement of counsel for the prosecution, and the minutes of the testimony taken before the grand jury, it would seem that the prosecution were warranted in prosecuting this case, and that they have investigated thoroughly so far as they were able to, with this class of evidence, and the court has given them that latitude to which they were entitled, when they were compelled to rely upon hostile witnesses, at least some of them. The fact that they were hostile to the prosecution is apparent to any candid, fair-minded man listening to the testimony.

I regret to say, gentlemen of the jury, that I am of the opinion, and have an abiding conviction, that the ends of justice have been defeated in this case by false swearing. I hope never to see it done again, or by any other. I have no idea that counsel for the defendant are connected with it in any way. They would not advise any such thing. But there are persons who are not guiltless, in all human probability.

In view of the evidence, the court instructs you now to find a verdict of not guilty. You can find it where you sit.

Pleads Guilty to Charge.
In 1885 this same John Connelly was indicted for unlawful cohabitation with this same Anna Gallafant. To this indictment he entered a plea of not guilty.
But when the case was called for trial on Tuesday, October 6, 1885, this same John Connelly asked leave to withdraw his plea of not guilty, which was allowed by the court. He then pleaded guilty to the indictment and waived the statutory time for sentence.

HE WOULD MAKE NO PROMISES
In regard to obeying the laws in the future. He was then questioned by the court, Judge Charles S. Zane presiding, thus:
By the court—Are you a citizen of the United States?
Answer—Yes, sir.
Court—Well, any man that asserts as you have that he is not willing to promise to obey the laws is not fit to be a citizen of the United States.
The full penalty of the law, viz., six months in the penitentiary, $300 fine and costs in the case, amounting to $41.95, was then imposed.

In the story of the trial printed in the Tribune on October 7, 1885, it was stated that Connelly on his way to the pen made the statement that his domestic troubles were so heavy that he would rather be in the penitentiary than at home; that he was practically without any wife. In other words he is ostracized by his wives.

Poisoned Dogs.
In the '90s when Grant Smith was police judge and John James was clerk of the police court, one John Connelly was arrested, tried and convicted for poisoning a valuable dog. The complaining witness was Charles Smith, familiarly known as "Pap Smith." He lived across the street from John Connelly on First avenue. His dog was worth $500.

John Connelly, according to the evidence adduced at the trial, bought strychnine at the Z. C. M. I. drug store, rubbed it into meat which he placed about his lawn around which there was no fence, and where children could pick it up had they been so inclined. Several valuable animals died in that neighborhood. Pap Smith was one of the men who lost a dog.

"Pap" Smith began an investigation.
He collected evidence. He filed information against John Connelly, who was arrested, tried and convicted of poisoning the valuable dog.

EMBEZZLER ADMITS
ROBBING EMPLOYERS
Tennesseean Says Love of Fast Life Caused Him to Become Fugitive.

Addison J. Trunkley, wanted in Memphis, Tenn., for the embezzlement of $10,- 000 from the McDonald, Grain & Feed company, said to be a branch of the Quaker Oats company, was arrested last night by Detectives Earl Ripley and George Cleveland.
Trunkley, according to his own story, told in his cell in the city jail last night that he had been in the city for some of the best positions with the Memphis company and was making good, when the love of high life, wine, dimes, merry banquets and the bright lights of the wide avenues caused his downfall.
He said that he had charge of the books and all accounts with his company, and that it came easy for him to beat his employers. He also said that he knew that he had got in bad with his company, but did not realize that he had taken such a large amount of money.
About $200 would cover all he had embezzled, he thought. Trunkley will waive extradition. The authorities at Memphis were advised of his arrest.
Trunkley came to Salt Lake City about a week ago. He is living in rooming house at 208 West Second South street, where he was arrested. He says he left Memphis about two months ago, after being employed with the McDonald company for over two years.

OGDEN POLICE, TOO, WERE AFTER ADDISON J. TRUNKLEY

Special to The Tribune.
OGDEN, Oct. 31.—After working in Ogden for several weeks as a clerk in the Southern Pacific freight department, Addison J. Trunkley, whose real name is Addison J. Trunkley, was arrested in Salt Lake tonight at the request of Chief Detective James Pender, and will be held for the Memphis, Tenn., authorities, where he is wanted for embezzlement of $10,000 from his former employers in that city. The local police received a letter several days ago from a detective agency of Memphis enclosing his description.
Detective Pender and Patrolman Clayton went to work on the case and found out that Trunkley had left Ogden last Friday. Procuring his address at Second South street, Detective Pender notified the Salt Lake police and Trunkley was arrested this afternoon.

GROWTH OF WIRELESS OFFICIALLY SHOWN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—With the publication of the government's wireless directory, just out, some idea is gained of the extent to which the wireless is now used. In this directory, perhaps the most extensive in existence, there are listed 1570 stations, which include shore stations and ships, but does not take into consideration the warships of foreign governments, nor are listed the hundreds of stations equipped and operated by amateurs.
The directory is the work of the bureau of steam engineering of the United States navy. There are about 700 shore stations scattered all over the globe. Of this number eighty-eight are on the Atlantic and gulf coasts of the United States, forty-eight on the great lakes, fifty-one on the Pacific coast and sixteen in Alaska.
In the list of merchant vessels, such as steamships, tugboats, etc., 821 are listed in all parts of the world.

"Miss Hobbs" by Jerome K. Jerome, is the play being presented by William Ingersoll, Miss Margaret Dills and company at the Garrick theatre all this week.
The piece is unquestionably the best in the line of comedies yet put on by the company, and is one continual scream from start to finish, without a dull moment to encounter during the entire evening. All members of the cast are particularly suited to their respective parts, and the play goes with a smoothness that makes it a performance worth while. Of the work of Margaret Dills, who portrays the character of Miss Hobbs, and who enacts the role most admirably, this should be said:

Stage folk often endeavor themselves in the hearts of habitual theater-goers, most of whom the actor or actress seldom, if ever, meets. This is particularly true of the members of a stock company, and the same rule holds good with principals and minor impersonators alike. The first time a theater-goer sees an actor or actress perform, the performer is seen only in that degree of conspicuity which the latitude of the characterization permits. Before long, the performer is a stock actor and the theater-goer a steady patron, an interest is inspired in the mind of the auditor which develops into admiration and a sincere, one-sided friendship as the versatility of the performer is evidenced in various impersonations in the succeeding productions of the stock company.

A striking and noteworthy case in this connection in local theatrical circles is that of Miss Margaret Dills, who is playing the title role of "Miss Hobbs," being presented by the William Ingersoll stock company at the Garrick theatre this week.
The manner in which Miss Dills renders her impersonation of this rather difficult character is a masterpiece of art. Before long, the performer is a
company.

Miss Dills' stage career has not been a long one. She was born in Connecticut, and is proud of the fact that she has learned from the same study which bet-ters of containing the birthplace of Isabel Irving. Her first appearance on the stage was in a musical comedy, "The Flirt," which she played with Richard Mansfield. Her roles were necessarily inconspicuous, but she studied hard, constant in her desire to make good.

"She is a versatile actress, always playing her part and delivering her lines with studious, painstaking care. As an emotional actress, she has been highly flattered by the eastern press. As a character actress, her work has more than justified the high opinion of her as such.
Off the stage, she is delightfully frank and unaffected by the wealth of well-earned compliments showered upon her by her large number of admirers. She has a charm, a personality that is particularly noticeable in her work. As a person, she is a perfect lady, and it is to become an admirer and a staunch friend. And she may, with all sincerity, boast of hundreds of friends whom she loves and who love her as much as she loves them. Miss Dills' work has been a splendid success, and it is an opportunity for her to perform in starring roles, which will pay her most sincere homage, because those who have seen her will see her as a member of the Ingersoll company, particularly as Miss Hobbs, will always give her a royal welcome to Salt Lake.

Jack Artois, who is at the Orpheum this week, goes in for other athletic stunts besides his regular bar work, which entitles him to his weekly salary.
He is justly proud of his swimming records. He is planning just as soon as he can to go back to England in a try at swimming the English channel. The record for the channel swim is 164 hours, made by Captain Webb, and Mr. Artois feels he will not have any difficulty in breaking this, as he has often remained in the water eighteen and twenty hours without feeling any injurious effects. Mr.
Artois was one of a group including Annette Kellermann who tried to swim out to the Goodwin Sands from Dover. Miss Kellermann had to give up along with several others, but Artois was in at the finish.

The new vaudeville bill which opened Monday night at the Casino is exceptionally good. There are three high-class acts and the pictures are splendid. One subject, "Home-Made Mince Pie," is a scream, and is worth going miles to see.
Those wanting an hour's real pleasure will enjoy the Casino show this week.

Little Isabel McDonald, the fair danseuse who is to be one of the especial attractions at the Free kindergarten va-deville on November 10, is said to be a perfect wonder in the art of terpsichore, doing both clog dancing and other kinds in a way that is quite new to professional.
